

Planning my internship

Planning and Implementation

You will find a checklist to tick off, a timeline for planning, and supporting information. Methods and references to helpful materials from your summary booklet, at the beginning of your career choice portfolio. This material also belongs in your career choice portfolio.

Step 1:

Step 2:

Processing the material from the toolbox following the first checklist

Think of your materials like a puzzle and put the results together:

The results of the CAREER Explorer have given you ideas about what interests you most at the moment.
Furthermore: How did you then categorize the results under "My Professional Self"?
My Opinion and Conclusion Booklet: Motivation, conclusions from your career exploration activities, and an evaluation of your experiences! Does this align with your internship plans? My Treasure Map: Who have you noted here so far? Can anyone help you find an internship?

Step 3:
Gather information!

I would like to apply for a work placement in these three areas:

Use the last page of your career choice folder; here you will find many helpful links to informative pages that will help you find out even more about your TOP 3 (general) and TOP 6 (in your area).

My top 3 institutions/businesses:

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

My top 6 institutions/businesses (by name) in my region:

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

4. _____

5. _____

6. _____

Step 4:
Review and compile documents

What documents do you need for your application?
This can vary from person to person, depending on the individual.
what the facility or business needs.

I already have this for that:

Building blocks for a CV (summary booklet)

Facilities/Businesses

My Motivation (Conclusion Booklet)

You are the right person for this institution/company.

My conclusion (conclusion booklet)

Self-descriptions (conclusion booklet)

Certificates/Testimonials (My documents)

Anything else?

What makes a 'good' application?
(Of course you can add to the list!)

It should be adapted to the respective professional field/profession: more serious, creative, classic, etc.? (You can find out what is suitable by looking at websites of institutions or companies in this field, for example. Here you will usually recognize a certain style.)

It should still be individual, i.e., ask yourself, which design or text would you take a second look at if you didn't (yet) know the person behind it?

Of course, it should contain all the necessary documents and data!

It should say: This is why you want to do your internship at this particular company, and this is why you are the right person for it!

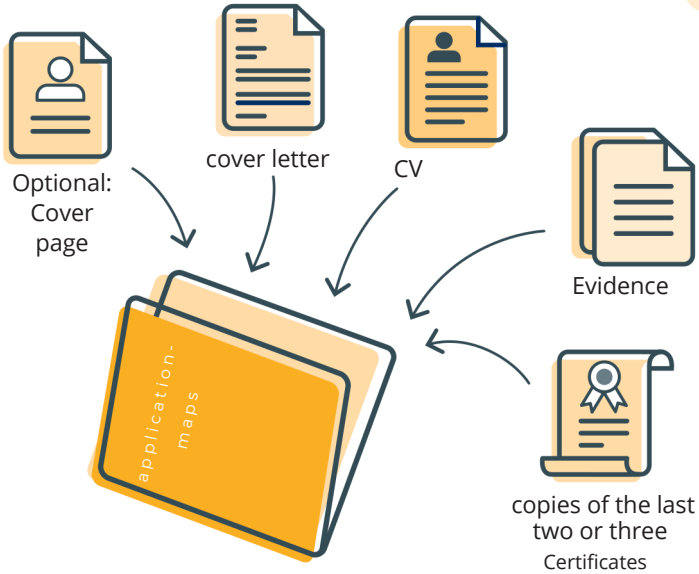

Start your concrete preparations!

Most HR managers now prefer online applications to traditional paper applications sent by post. While an online application is quick to submit, you should prepare it with the same care and attention to detail as you would a traditional paper application.

The tabular CV:
Here you can clearly present your educational background, interests, insights, etc. at a glance.
You should adapt the design to your desired profession.

The cover letter:
Here you describe your strengths and Your motivation for applying specifically to this company. Depending on where you are applying, you should adjust the text accordingly.

Certificates, proofs and attestations:
Here you present a selection of Include relevant supporting documents. This also includes certificates of participation in career exploration programs or of volunteer work. Always remember to send copies, never originals!

Tips!
As part of a digital application process, you will usually upload PDF files to the company's website or special online platforms, or send them as an email attachment.
Unless the company specifies otherwise, it is advisable to combine the application documents into a single PDF document.

You should also pay attention to the metadata of your PDF document. This includes additional information about the document, such as the author's name and the creation date. Therefore, you should create new and up-to-date PDF documents for each online application and edit the metadata if necessary.

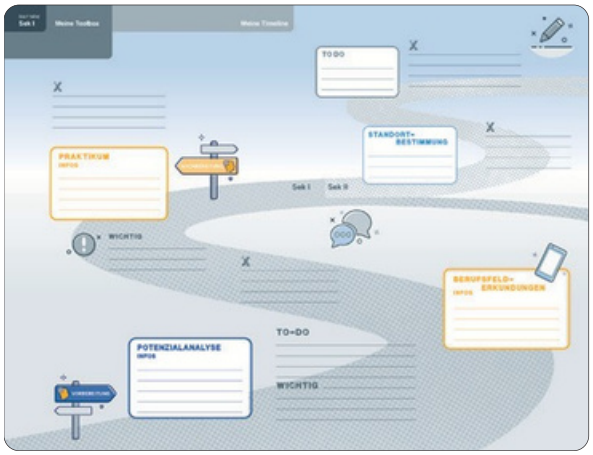

Step 5:
Do you need a fact check?

If you are sure you have everything together, go directly to step 6.

Have you thought of everything? Is there anything else on your timeline that would be important for preparing for the internship?

Are there any strengths in "My Self" that could be interesting for your resume?

Are the building blocks of your resume complete? Are any important details or specific strengths and skills missing that could be relevant?

Do you have all the information you need for your cover letter? Do you need more information about the institutions or companies you want to apply to?

Step 6:

Start by writing your application.

Helpful questions and thoughts can be there for you:

The building blocks of your CV and your descriptions of motivation/conclusion from your conclusion booklet can provide you with important clues.

How does the profession present itself? For example, on its websites? For instance, as "modern", "reputable", (...)?

Which of your skills, qualities, knowledge, (...) are a very good match for those needed in the professional field?

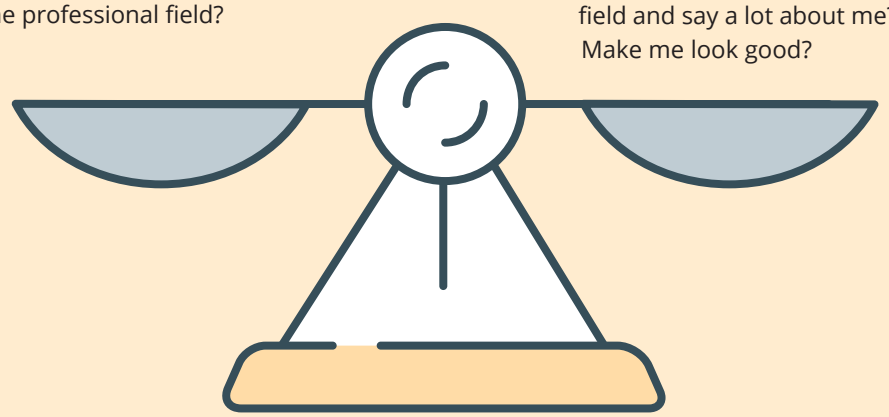

What does this mean for your application? What aspects of your application can you highlight?

My private self

Which skills, qualities (...) are important to me, but of little use in the professional field?

My official self

What skills, qualities (...) fit well into the professional field and say a lot about me? Make me look good?

What skills do I want for this professional field? _____ point out?

How exactly can you briefly highlight and describe the appropriate self-descriptions in your tabular CV and in more detail in your cover letter?

Use the image of the scales to illustrate how much certain skills, knowledge, etc. could weigh for you and your professional field.
