

Let's go

Why career guidance in upper secondary school?

You have already reached some milestones in your professional development process.

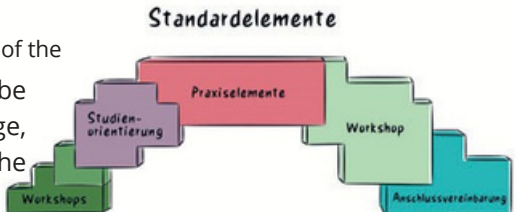

Orientation is complete. Some students already have a good idea of which direction they want to take, while others still need to explore further. The building blocks of career orientation in upper secondary education (standard elements) will help you on your path to a career.

What is being done?

First, reflect on your previous career orientation process and
You will determine your individual starting point. You will complete further practical elements, deepen your vocational training and study orientation, and receive help and support to strengthen your decision-making skills. You will record your next planned steps again in a follow-up agreement.

When will what happen?

The order of the standard elements is shown in the representation of the

To see the bridge. The exact timing of the elements will be determined by your school. If you attend a vocational college, the selection of standard elements will be adapted to the curriculum.

Who can help me?

Extensive support options are available to you, for example:

School: Career guidance coordinator, upper school counseling team; Employment Agency: Career counseling; Universities: Central student counseling service; Chambers of Commerce: e.g., Chamber of Industry and Commerce, Chamber of Skilled Crafts

And my career choice passport?

You continue to use your career choice portfolio in upper secondary school. It remains yours.

Personal portfolio tool. Your career choice passport already contains documents, consultation results and important documents from the career orientation in secondary level I, which you can use to plan the further process.

Because this process is highly individualized in upper secondary education, you will currently find very little content in the career choice portfolio for upper secondary education. The materials you will file here are either created by you or provided by the stakeholders involved in the career orientation process.

Their way into professional future

Info: The following overview outlines the steps involved in the process of Career guidance in upper secondary education is important.

The process of career orientation in upper secondary education

My potential: Self-assessment

They reflect on their career orientation process in secondary school level I, determine their current position and your career choice skills.

My potential: Strengthening decision-making skills I

You will learn what makes a good decisionwhen choosing an apprenticeship or course of study and plan your next steps on your way to your (desired) profession.

My practice elements

Abroad, in companies, at universities- whether in schools or institutions, you will gain experience and practical insights. You will document the results and reflect on your findings to further your education to solidify the decision.

My education / My studies

You will learn more about the requirements and opportunities of vocational training or university studies. You will compare the respective requirements with your strengths and personal profile and find out about suitable training programs and courses of study. Many partners will help you with this orientation.

My potential: Strengthening decision-making skills

They now know the framework and perspectives of an apprenticeship or university studies and make a reflective and goal-oriented decision.
A conscious decision based on your experiences and results in the process career guidance.

My documents

They collect all relevant information here. Documents for your application process.

My conclusion

In the follow-up agreement, you specify your (desired) profession and your next steps towards getting there.